

Get Started Oil Painting!

Everything You Need for $600 or Less

One major hurdle someone just getting started with oil painting encounters is not knowing which supplies they absolutely need. I can attest to having a drawer full of never used oil paint tubes and canisters brimming with brushes that just didn't work well or I never really needed in the first place. I learned the error of my ways after finally consulting a professional painter. The resulting list of supplies comes with a manageable price tag and will enable you to execute any style painting you desire – from still life to landscape and even fine art portraiture. Once you master your first painting, feel free to add to this list, but seriously – this is all you need to get started and I have continued to use just these items for all my oil paintings.

Many of these items can also be purchased at other online art supply companies but beware of costly shipping charges. If you are lucky, you may also be able to find everything you need at a local art supply store. In my own experience, trying to find everything in one place seldom works out and the time and money spent traveling from one store to another just wasn't worth it.
